NOYES'

PATENT HAND WEEDER.

This neat and valuable labor saving implement is now offered to the public with the most confident assurance that, as an effective weeder, it leaves nothing for the agriculturist or florist to desire.

That we do not over estimate the merits will appear from the following quotation from a recent letter of Peter Henderson, the well known seed-man and florist, of New York, who says: "I think it decidedly the best thing I have ever used, in the way of a weeder. My old foreman, who has for the past twelve years had the hoeing of my vegetable department, pronounced it a perfect success, and says it will save at least 50 per cent. of our labor in weeding. I think it will do even better than that, particularly in root crops, such as onions, cabbages, beets, turnips, cutting parsley, carrots, &c."

All who cultivate flower gardens will find the "Weeder" to be just the thing to relieve the labor and thus enhance the pleasure of their employment among the plants and flowers. For Sale at all Seed and Hardware Stores. ALBERT NOYES.

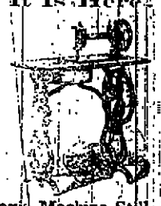
Look Out and See!

THE DAVIS IS COMING

It Is Here!



The Davis Machine Still Ahead

Messrs. PATTEN & DINSMORE'S Gents—I am writing you a few lines to say that the Davis Sewing Machine you sold me is the best one I ever had. The Davis will do the best Embroidering, Hemming, Tucking and Gathering, and will do it faster than any machine in the market. We have used it for three months, and it has given entire satisfaction. Yours, MRS. S. BUTLER.

Bangor, May 9, 1870.

Messrs. PATTEN & DINSMORE Gents—We have used the Davis Sewing Machine you sold us, and we are glad to say that it is the best machine now in use. We have used both the Davis and Wheeler & Wilson, and we consider the Davis far superior to the latter. We have used it for three months, and it has given entire satisfaction. We have used it for all kinds of work, and it has done it well two possible parties, themselves for business. The party in power occupied the benches—They are literally benches with cushions on them—at the speaker's right. The opposition party, the party just defeated by the people, sat upon the benches at the speaker's left. The retiring ministry sat on the first seat next to the long table of the scribes and mace. The ministers of the opposition, that is the ex-ministers of the last administration, have the first bench upon the left. The members belonging to these two parties severally fill the seats immediately behind their ministerial leaders, and are thence distributed, in a similar way all about the House. The lower floor, in fact, does not accommodate all the members. Some of them, consequently, have to take seats in the front galleries. Nothing could be more awkward than this crowding of so many men into so small a place. The galleries put together will not hold over one hundred and fifty people; and part of this space is occupied by the members. The ladies' gallery is the queerest thing of all. It is a narrow space directly over the Speaker's head; it will hold about forty persons; and for fear that they might fling their arrows in some restless manner upon the members of the House, and so affect the decision of important questions, they are completely separated from the room by a closely-woven wire partition, or some thing having that appearance, behind which they can only see and look. They can see and hear, but cannot be distinctly seen: so that, if they deal in any female archery at all, they have to take careful aim and shoot through the meshes of their iron net.

Such is the English House of Commons so far as its structure and general appurtenances are concerned. Whom do we now behold before us? The man who first took office as Mr. Gladstone; and there he sits, a calm, shrewd, nervous-looking gentleman, with a shaven face, with a nearly bald head, taking things very quietly, but conversing occasionally with his ministers. Judging him from this distance, I should not take him to be the man he is. He has not that presence which the imagination always looks for in great characters. But there is something elegant and scholarly in his aspect. There is an occasional look of sharpness, even shrewdness, in his countenance but the general habit of his face is that of calm reflection and of propound honesty of purpose. It is his honest look, I imagine, that gave him his first hold upon the confidence and affections of the British public. His marked abilities, his steady zeal for the welfare of England, his unswerving fidelity to the popular cause against a blooted aristocracy, have confirmed him in his position.

On the opposite side of the table we naturally expect to see Mr. Disraeli, the ex-Prime-Minister, and leader in the House of the Tory party. But he is not in health. His novel of Lothair has cost him so much labor as temporarily to lay him out. He is often seen up on the streets, and he strides along with the step of a conscious giant; but he leaves the House of Commons to his right hand man, Dr. Ball.

This gentleman, while we are sizing him, occupies Mr. Disraeli's place. He is certainly a man equal to as difficult position. Seeing him from the Speaker's Gallery, he seems to me to be a gentleman, of about fifty winters; and yet there is little or no frost upon his head. His whiskers begin to look a little snowy. But his complexion is dark, his hair black, and in person he is a little shorter than Mr. Gladstone.

There is not space in this communication to give pen portraits of the remaining ministers. Much less can we find time to characterize any portion of the six hundred members of this interesting body. It is enough to say that their general appearance is not a bright set, by any means. An equal number of our own Representatives to be seen every winter at Augusta. They fall short, in my view, of our lower House at Washington. As to speaking talent, they bear no comparison to our members, either at our National or State Legislature.

It so happens that the topic of the evening is the most important and interesting of the session, the Irish Land Bill. We hear about forty speeches on it. At least, I do; for at about ten o'clock all my American companions get weary and retire. I alone resolve to sit it out. It was the Irish Land Bill; it was the Irish Land Bill at its third reading; the tug of war had come upon it; and I wished to witness the close of a debate which has filled the world with interest, and which will go down to future generations.

The speeches, of course, cannot be here reported. Mr. Gladstone made one considerable speech and several other shorter ones, which were speeches of explanation. He was always followed and criticized, fairly and honorably, by Dr. Ball. As orators, Gladstone and Ball are not very unlike. Gladstone being the more ornate, Ball the more terse and sinewy. They are both respectful, polite, gentlemanly in their bearing toward each other. Though they often spoke with great intensity of feeling, there was not one harsh word between them. It was quite observable, that, though they addressed the chair on rising, in form I mean, they talked continually at one another, looking directly into each other's faces. They never looked to the speaker, and seemed not to recognize his presence, after the first salutation upon rising. They both spoke well; they spoke to the points in hand; they spoke with animation and sometimes with fervor; but neither they, nor any man there that night, exhibited a particle of what we Americans look upon as eloquence.

At five minutes past 12 o'clock, the third reading was completed. The ministry had carried the last item of the bill with an overwhelming majority; and when the fact was announced from the chair, the liberal members rose en masse, swung their hats, and made the old hall ring with the most vociferous rejoicing!

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL.

The health of the Emperor Napoleon was reported as much better, yesterday.

John F. Rogers, aged 68 years, Cashier of the Railroad National Bank, of Lowell, Mass. died Thursday night, of Anemia.

The London Press highly praises the appointment of M. Prevost Paradol, as French Minister to Washington.

The Corinne Reporter nominates J. H. Beadle, (Gentile), as delegate to Congress from Utah.

Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte died at his residence in Baltimore, at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, aged 86 years. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Williams, died at 4 o'clock, A. M. at the same residence.

Lieut. Commander Giles, and Lieut. Gibson, U. S. Navy, have been ordered to the Mohican. Lieut. Graham has been detached from the New York navy yard, and ordered to the Michigan, and Assistant Surgeon Hoyt, to the Seneca.

THE REPUBLICAN NOMINATION.

At the unusually large and earnest assemblage of delegates, representing the Republican party of Maine, in the recent Convention at Augusta, the names of two gentlemen, well known, and held in high esteem throughout the State, were presented by their friends as candidates for the Gubernatorial nomination. The merit and availability of both, with their peculiar individual claims for the recognition of the party, had been warmly and thoroughly discussed by their respective friends previous to the election of delegates and the Convention proceeded in the usual manner, by ballot secretly, to give official expression to the preferences fairly and really entertained together. The numerical majority and the close division of the vote indicated the great interest felt in the result, as to the popularity of the candidates, while the orderly and good natured manner in which the proceedings were conducted, and the entire unanimity of feeling and purpose manifested throughout the whole session of the Convention, as well as the harmonious enthusiasm with which the successful issue was hailed, all showed the party will remain its dominance in the approaching campaign.

In all cases the question of candidates for nomination to the Convention, as well as that of their preference while really controlled by the eligibility, competence and acceptable record of both candidates, and although naturally and sincerely desiring that the choice should be cast, by the vote, we cheerfully acquiesced in the decision of the majority, and placing the name of Hon. Sidney Perham at the head of our column, as the chosen standard bearer of the Republican party, we shall extend to him our cordial and earnest support, and we are confident of a secure his election by a majority of people which have hitherto so justly characterized the success of our party.

JUDGE HOAR'S SUCCESSOR.

Judge Hoar of Massachusetts having resigned the office of Attorney General, to which he was appointed by Pres dent Grant, the vacancy thus broke out he was a Whig, and always thought, original in his principles. He struggled manfully and gallantly against the rebels, by whom he was closely watched and he died consumption by accepting a nominal position on the Staff of Rebel Trombull Green Jerd Linn Boyd to his grave, the Government until his death. Others were opposed by Congress this winter. He has been an earnest advocate of the equal rights of all men, and was an Elector for the Grant and Colfax Presidential ticket, and a member of the Convention which framed the present Constitution of Georgia, in which he was conspicuous for his advocacy of the right of the colored men to hold office. All who knew him speak of him as a man of the highest integrity, and his election as District Attorney has been highly praised by the anti Representatives to be seen every winter at Augusta. They fall short, in my view, of our lower House at, Washington. As to speaking talent, they bear no comparison to our members, either at our National or, State Legislature.

BANGOR AND PISCATAQUIS RAILROAD.

[Correspondence of the Whig & Courier.]

A most excellent Meeting exploits that has spoken without premeditation, and that just as good, if not better, than if it had been read, and leaves us to infer that the language he reported would qualify, materially, the import of the language that was reported, will chiefly accept in behalf of our county the choice should be cast. By the vote, we cheerfully acquiesced in the decision of the majority, and placing the name of Hon. Sidney Perham at the head of our column, as the chosen standard bearer of the Republican party, we shall extend to him our cordial and earnest support, and we are confident of a secure his election by a majority of people which have hitherto so justly characterized the success of our party.

The Mayor will notice that charging a man or body of men with being unwise, after they have heard a full discussion of a question in all its bearings, and charging them with making a mistake, simply in trusting to the representations of men who have gained their confidence, is quite another thing. But still if our excellent Mayor can shield himself of any remarks and to it himself softly down, we shan't cry out we are much hurt.

The Mayor says "when a million has been spent on a Railroad and there remains some chance of paying it for four hundred thousand dollar less than it cost: it would be strange if some other Railroad, or some enterprising individuals did not want it. We say, it would be still more strange if they shouldn't prefer to have the city put in to the road another $125,000 to complete it (rather than do it themselves) and thereby get it for the same amount of money. In the succeeding paragraph, where the Mayor speaks of persons voting, and getting out voters for and against the loan, there is a degree of severity and fairness worthy of himself, for he says, "I have every man to judge for himself."

If what the Democrat says, is true, to which the Mayor alludes as he travels over to another issue, perhaps, to take breath, in quoting from that paper, it is a source of satisfaction to find that there is no great evil without some good being mixed with it, and here we see exhibited the law of cure claimed by the homeopaths, that like cure like, and this anti-temperance in one direction, cured anti-temperance in another.

Examined, a correspondent of our paper, advocating the loan of $125,000, who is supposed to be an officer of the road, threatens to compel the city to pay the interest on the bonds loaned the road, and due in October next, amounting to $17,500. Does this look like wisdom, or foolishness in voting No for a further sum of $125,000, when they threaten to repudiate this party, on the $600,000 they already have? The argument used to induce citizens to vote the further loan asked for was "you are in for $800,000 now, and to make that good must go another $125,000. What do they now say? We won't pay the interest on the $600,000 because you wouldn't give us another $125,000." They would, after getting this $125,000, say, give us $100,000 more to pay the contractors' award by the referees; or we will repudiate the whole.

We have not yet seen, commented upon in the Mercantile, if it refers to our communication; but will notice his last argument, to show how eager, even some of the men in the Board of Trade are to subscribe stock to railroads, when they can throw the burden upon the head of the Mayor—calling him a fool in one way that half the bar and hand me towards our associate what way he intends to treat this matter, whether from a business standpoint or a philanthropic one, and as-sume the part of the teacher of the degree, that he is better informed than he is. If he will apply the rule which he applies to his own private business, to one, we will find the city's interest with him; but if his desire to play the philanthropist at the expense of the city, should not be followed to let her take her chance. His assistant, we are told here, to it being, from what we have seen of their management, a fair specimen of themselves.—They have put the city in for nearly the whole cost of the road, while they have managed it to suit themselves. We don't think the Mayor need fear every election for them, as they appear to be taking care of them selves. To be equally, even, we suppose, sell the road if a reasonable price can be obtained for the stock, and let us take care of the matters that come nearer our own home. If this road is retained by the city, we believe it will follow the fate of roads that have been owned by some other cities, and after an expensive and vexatious difficulty, that could not be avoided if unaccounted—it will have taken place, at last the city will be glad to get rid of it for best they can.

Our city operation is not for the purpose of either manufacturing, trading, farming, or building railroads, but we are a set of together for other purposes. We are all business partners, what does it there of expect the city to give all or nearly all connections to Oldtown and shutting up into another country or commencing at Bucksport and running to Rockland, there to connect with the Sanford steamers coming to Bangor?

Why is it so, any citizen, if this is a business partnership, sign for the whole, as such you will see a number of the first for all such enterprises would seem to each one of its members a proper and useful enterprise that will help the business of the city, and in this way you see every one could carry out their particular and favorite project? We are embarrassed with the present arrangements for only a few men have been enabled to develop their own plans. Why should it exist? Can we have a chance as the few favored ones?

A decision has just been rendered by the Supreme Court of Michigan against this doctrine. The Judges say that a Railroad is no more a public corporation than a stage coach or a steam-mill, for all three of them take toll for the use.

Boston Journal.

CRUELTY.

Late Havana advices corroborate the failure of the expedition of the steamer George B. Upton to Cuba. A number of men and two thousand arms had been landed when the Spanish gunboat appeared, and the Upton at once sailed for Aspinwall. Bad management on the part of the Cuban Junta in New York is the alleged cause of the failure, in not providing pilots for the ship, or guides to meet the soldiers, who were thus betrayed into the hands of the Spaniards.

TO THE

Whig & Courier.

FORTY-FIRST CONGRESS—SECOND SESSION.

WASHINGTON, June 17.

SENATE.

The joint resolution for relief of certain army officers commissioned while in rebel prisons, providing for compensation from date of commission, was passed.

Mrs. Lincoln's pension bill was taken up, on motion of Mr. Sumner against the objections of Mr. Edwards, and discussed without action until the expiration of the morning hour.

Mr. Edwards argued against the bill, contending that it would be an injury to all the other women in the country, made widows by the war, of whom over 214,000 are receiving only $300 a year each. To grant this large and unprecedented pension, however worthy the recipient.

The amendment to the postal appropriation bill, retaining the letter carrier system in cities of less than 40,000 inhabitants, was concurred in, and Mr. Ramsey moved as a further amendment, the House bill, abolishing the franking privilege, and continuing the present provision of the law, for free transmission of newspapers.

Adopted—42 to 11.

The amendment to continue the privilege to the executive and agricultural departments, petition to Congress, etc., and that the abolition should not go into effect until July next, was rejected, and another providing for an extension of stamped envelopes for use of Congress and the departments, and making appropriations to defray the expense, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. Sumner moved as an amendment his proposition to reduce the expense of carrying the mails and providing for a one penny postage system, etc., pending which the Senate went into executive session, and afterward took a recess until the evening.

At the evening session the postal appropriation bill was proceeded with.

The Senate rejected Mr. Sumner's substitute—11 to 25.

The amendment by Mr. Nye to provide for a two per cent. letter postage was agreed to—28 to 17, and at 12 o'clock M. the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.

The Virginia contested election case, of Whittlesey against McKenzie, was decided in favor of the latter, the sitting member.

Mr. Cobb, from Committee on Military affairs, by unanimous consent reported bill to equalize the bounties of soldiers, allowing $833 to non-commissioned officers, soldiers and musicians, for each month's service between the 15th of April, 1861, and the 9th of May, 1865, deducting the United States bounties already paid.

A joint resolution was passed instructing the architect of the capitol to transfer to the Lincoln Monument Association, at Springfield, Ill., the stone presented by the Patriots of Rome to President Lincoln, and which is now in the crypt of the capitol.

A bill was passed allowing individuals to explore the public domain at their own expense.

The bill granting Goat Island, in San Francisco Bay, to the Western Pacific Railroad Company was rejected—80 to 81.

Subsequently Mr. Wood of New York made a motion to reconsider which was entered.

The remainder of the session was occupied with the pension bill and the District of Columbia business, and at 4.45 p. m. the House adjourned.

FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 17.

The Select Committee on the Cuban Steamer business closed its investigation to-day, and will on Monday report their conclusions. Scott Smith, ordered additional affidavits, containing names other than those which appear in N. B. Taylor's statement, on which Smith based his letter, but the Committee decided that they could not receive them, as under the orders of the House they could not go back of the document used in the original publication.

Representative Fitch testified that he had never seen Taylor, and Representative McCormick, that though he occupied a room in Taylor's house, he never conversed with him on public affairs, utterly deeming any such intimacy as contained in Taylor's statement.

—The caterpillars which usually infest fruit trees are reported very scarce in this vicinity. A gentleman who travels through this and adjoining counties quite extensively, says he has not seen more than a dozen of their nests this season.

—There will be an union service of the Baptist churches in this city at the Free Street. Columbia street, to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock at which Rev. W. C. Child, D. D., will present the cause of the Bible and Publication Society.

—The Band Concert last evening was given in West Market Square, a stand having been erected there for the purpose, as it was announced, in Centre Park, the music would be interfered with the services in the Universalist church.

—We understand that the body lately found in a wood-lot in Hampden and buried by the town authorities in East Hampden Cemetery, was that of Mr. Henry Emerson, a young man who is supposed to have fallen overboard in the night from the Portland steamer City of Richmond, some months ago.

—NICE THING.—Ice cream soda from Brad[illegible] new fountain. He makes his syrups from fresh fruit, and the large patronage he receives this hot weather indicates that they are appreciated.

—JACKSON GUARDS.—At a meeting last evening, 21 new members were mustered into the State service. The Company has voted to go to Portland on July 4th, provided a sufficient number of uniforms can be made in time and satisfactory arrangements made regarding transportation, so that the members can return without unnecessary delay.

—BAPTIST ANNIVERSARIES.—The Maine Baptist Missionary Convention is to hold its anniversary with the First Baptist Church in Portland, next week, commencing Tuesday, with a special session of the Board at 9 a. m. the convention meets at 10. In the afternoon report of the Board will be taken up, and at 8 o'clock the annual sermon will be delivered by Rev. B. F. Hazlewood, of this city. In the evening, a sermon by Prof. S. K. Smith, of Colby University. Wednesday will be devoted to reports, &c., and the evening will be mainly devoted to the claims of Sabbath Schools. The whole of Thursday will be given to the claims of the ministry. In addition to the sermon before the Education Society by Rev. S. L. B. Chase, of this city, and the Annual Reports of its Treasurer and Secretary, it is proposed to hold a free conference on the great destruction of ministers in our State. It is expected that Rev. Dr. Hovey, of Newton, and Rev. Dr. Caldwell of Providence, will be present, and address the meeting. We hear that free return tickets will be issued those attending the Convention, good until the 27th.

—EXCURSION.—Post No. 2, G. A. R., and the Bangor Cornet Band, numbering in all about 50, embarked on the steamer "White Foam" for Bucksport. That day morning, and returned by the same route in the moonlight, reaching the city at about 1 o'clock Friday morning. All the party speak in the highest terms of the excursion. Several persons who went down in the Cambridge, as well as a party of ladies, &c., and gentlemen invited by the Post, some of whom returned in the City of Richmond yesterday morning. That number on board coming up the river was 75—all of whom expressed themselves as highly delighted with the little steamer and her careful management by Capt. Gerry and Engineer King. Several moonlight trips on the "White Foam" were planned, and we doubt not will be enjoyed by a large number of our citizens.

—CURRANT WORM.—A friend who has cleared his bushes of these pests, hands us a recipe as follows: Take four pound of common hard soap, slice it thin, and dissolve it over a fire, in about six quarts of water. Heat nearly to the boiling point, stirring it often, when all dissolved add two ounces of carbolic acid, and then pour the whole into a barrel of water, and stir up well, so as to make a strong suds. Apply with a garden syringe, wetting the leaves, and it will clear off the worms, slugs, caterpillars, &c., without injury to the fruit or foliage. The same treatment is recommended for the rose slugs.

—DEDICATION.—An association was formed about two years ago in Levant, under the name of "Levant Union Bethel Association" for the purpose of erecting a suitable house in which the people of all denominations might worship God. The enterprise has at last succeeded, and the completed house is fully and centrally a union house, being open and free to all denominations. We learn that dedicatory services will be held on Saturday the 3d day of July next, at 10 o'clock a. m. to which ministers of all denominations are invited. The speaker to deliver the dedicatory sermon will be selected by the ministers present, from among themselves. Religious services will also be held on Sunday and Monday, the 2d and 4th days of July.

Friday, June 17th.—Hugh Golden, a mariner, for assaulting James Brown in Pickering Square, was fined $5 and costs, but appealed, and furnished $50 bail for his appearance at the next criminal term of the S. J. Court.

UNIVERSALIST ORTHENIAL.

The Universalist [illegible] Meeting, to which we have alluded [illegible] late, commenced in the Universalist Church in this city on Quite a large congregation was present at the opening services including a number of the clergy of the denomination. The [illegible] were ushered by three large and [illegible] charged with exquisite [illegible].

Rev. Amory Battles [illegible] the Church opened the services by [illegible] the 100th Hymn, [illegible] Rev. W. W. Lovejoy, of Orono, [illegible] read the LV., and [illegible] the IX. Chapter of Isaiah, after [illegible] choir of well-trained voices [illegible] a selection. Rev. N. Gunn [illegible] recent prayer, which was followed by the choir and congregation [illegible] 900th Hymn, "Come, Thou Almighty King."

The Rev. W. W. Lovejoy [illegible] text: "The future differs from the present, yet we [illegible] Future."

Whose guardian [illegible] is near."

Rev. W. B. Gibbs [illegible] the text given at the centenary [illegible] Universalism, a part of the fifth [illegible]:

"Who, now, is willing [illegible] vice this day unto [illegible]."

This question was [illegible] propounded to and when the building [illegible] contemplated, and in response [illegible] and silver and iron [illegible] stones. The people [illegible] with perfect hearts, [illegible] Lord. The temples [illegible] so also the churches [illegible] Christian countries [illegible] devotion.

The present year is [illegible] the introduction of [illegible] Universalism. The preacher gave a brief sketch of its progress [illegible] and showed that the foundations [illegible] and supported in this, their [illegible] All members of the denomination [illegible] a willing mind were the [illegible] to come to the Lord. We should [illegible] and liver and precious stones of [illegible] then, but whether we have them [illegible] shall bring ourselves to be consecrated [illegible] God's service and glory.

The speaker characterized the [illegible] ations of the Centenary Committee as [illegible] merely practical. Contributions to the [illegible] ary fund for church extension of the [illegible] local fund, will certainly return their [illegible] to the giver and the giver's children. He urged that consecration be general, the effects [illegible] so that the influence of this [illegible] be felt through the next hundred years.

At the close of the sermon, a brief and [illegible] sketch of which we have given, the choir chanted the Lord's prayer.

Rev. Mr. Battles made a few remarks after which the 98th Hymn,

"Lord dismiss us with Thy blessing," was sung, and the meeting closed with benediction by Rev. Mr. Gibbs.

EVENING.

At half past 7 o'clock, the meeting was opened with an invocation by Rev. R. Blackett of Kenduskeag. Rev. W. W. Lovejoy of Orono, read a passage of scripture, after which an anthem was sung by the choir. Rev. Mr. Lovejoy offered prayer, and Rev. G. W. Quimby, of Augusta, editor of the Gospel Banner, made a short address, reciting what was done at the recent centenary meeting at Augusta.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, of Boston, was then introduced to the audience and commenced her address, which was listened to with the deepest attention throughout. She spoke upon the significance of the principles of Universalism and the power they have exerted and now exert to benefit and elevate the world, giving a brief sketch of their triumphs of the past, and predicting great results in the future. The address was about three-quarters of an hour in length, and was warmly commended by the large congregation who listened to it. The interest of the hour forbids giving a fuller report.

At the close of the address, Rev. Mr. Battles made a brief speech, setting forth the wants of the church, and stating what was expected to be done. He thereupon opened a business meeting and called Gen. S. F. Hersey to the chair. H. Lord, Esq., was chosen Secretary, and Gen. Hersey, on taking the chair, made a stirring address, urging liberality in the contribution about to be taken. How well the promise was responded to is shown, when we state that the sum of $3,000 was raised on the spot, the General leading off by pledging $2000 to West Brook Seminary, $1000 for a bell for the Church, and $200 to the Ministerial Fund. The amount raised on the evening was [illegible].

Church purposes, (including bell [illegible] West Brook Seminary [illegible]

The meeting adjourned with the singing by the audience of "Coronation."

[illegible] 15th [illegible] Fall, the power [illegible] and a benediction by Rev. Mr. Gibbs.

DEDICATION OF THE SOLDIERS' MONUMENT AT BUCKSPORT.

PROCESSION—INVOCATIONS—ORATION BY GEN. MATTOCKS.

On Thursday, June 16th, the Soldiers' Monument, just completed at Bucksport, was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies, and at the same time, the soldiers' graves were decorated, the whole affair being upon the auspices of Post No. 25, G. A. R., of that place. Post No. 2 of this city, and the Bangor Cornet Band were present and took part in the ceremonies.

The places of business in Bucksport were generally closed, flags were displayed at half mast, and the citizens "suspended business during the afternoon."

At two o'clock the procession was formed, the right resting at Post Headquarters, in the following order:

Bangor Cornet Band.
Bucksport Fire Department.
Orator, Chaplain and Aids.
Department Officers.
Post 25, G. A. R., of Bucksport.
Post 2, of Bangor, and Visiting Posts.
Monumental Association.
Municipal Officers.
Public Schools.
Teachers and Students of the Seminary.
Citizens and Visitors.

Comrade George Blodgett acted as Marshal, and Comrades T. P. Wardwell, A. C. Hubbard, E. F. Davies, and Capt. S. A. Cobb, Aids and Marshals.

The line marched up Franklin Street to Franklin Street, through Franklin Street to School Street, through School Street to Maine Street to Post Headquarters, and thence through Elm Street to the Cemetery. As they passed the bells were tolled, and minute guns fired from Fort Knox. The English House in Franklin Street and the engine and hose carriages which stood outside, were tastefully decorated with mottoes, flowers and evergreens.

The procession was formed in solid square, on the hill overlooking the cemetery and the grand stand, where the following order of exercises were performed:

Dirge, by the Band.

Prayer by Rev. E. W. Hutchinson.

Singing—"Glorious Day of Liberty."—by Citizens' Choir.

Reading the Roll of the Honored Dead by Adjutant P. P. Hill.

Singing—"Hark! A Nation's Shouts Ascend"—Choir.

Decoration of Soldiers' Graves.

Singing—"Our Soldiers' Graves."—Choir.

Oration by Gen. Charles P. Mattocks.

Singing—"Who would sever Freedom's Shrine?"—Choir.

"Old Fan Tuns."—Band

Benediction by Rev. Mr. Marden.

The soldiers' graves were [illegible] decorated, at the sound of the bugle, by the scholars of the public schools, in two parties, and Posts 25 and 2 G. A. R. Every grave was beautifully adorned with flowers and evergreens, the band in the meantime, playing the Prayer of Medea.

Gen. C. P. Mattocks of Portland, the orator of the day, was introduced by Capt. Blodgett, and delivered a very eloquent address, holding the close attention of the large audience during a half hour. We regret that we are unable, from want of space, to publish it in full. Every one who heard its characteristics, a splendid effort, which adds new lustre to the high reputation already obtained by the gallant general.

Excellent order was preserved on the line, by Geo. C. Collins, officer of the day, with an efficient guard.

At the conclusion of the exercises, a fine collation prepared by the ladies of Bucksport, was served in the Hall, to the Posts, invited guests and Band.

THE MONUMENT.

The monument is of granite, the base four feet inches high, finished in Boston, and the shaft, fifteen feet six inches high, finished in Portland, making a total of nineteen feet eleven inches. It stands in an area 25 by 10 feet, enclosed by a granite curb, which was set by the Pierce & Rowe of Frankfort. On the faces are the names of 63 deceased soldiers, with the regiments, to which they belonged, and an inscription above reads:

OUR COUNTRY CALLED—WE OBEYED.

The total cost of the monument was about $800, which sum was raised by the ladies of Bucksport and by subscriptions. The ladies will transfer the completed monument to the care of Francis G. Wardwell Post, No. 25.

THE ATHOL RAILWAY DISASTER.

THREE PERSONS KILLED AND TWENTY BADLY INJURED.

We have received the following particulars of the frightful disaster reported in our telegraphic columns yesterday:

The accident occurred between Athol and Barre Junction, Mass., Thursday, morning, about 10 o'clock, by which three persons were killed outright and twenty more frightfully mangled and bruised, some of the number past all hope of recovery. While Conductor Holden's passenger train, which left Boston at 7.30 o'clock, was at the point of [illegible] curve in a cut known as "Long" Bridge, the engineer saw a hand-car standing on the track. He immediately reversed the engine, and did everything that a man could to prevent the impending disaster, but the time was too brief after the discovery of the obstruction to arrest the speed of the train. The force of the collision caused the bridge to bend, and in a moment the engine was thrown from the track and over with crushing force through the bridge into the river, dragging the baggage and [illegible] passenger car with it. The next [illegible] passenger car was thrown under the baggage car and the second passenger car piled on top of the baggage car. P. H. Mason, section-master, was in charge of the hand-car at the time of the accident, and says he made a mistake in looking at his watch and admits that he was where he ought not to have been at the time of the catastrophe. The engine, baggage car and one passenger car are completely demolished, and [illegible] considered miraculous that all the occupants of the [illegible] and dear were not killed outright or badly injured.

The following is a complete list of the killed and wounded, from official sources:

Killed—Mrs. Almond Bowser, leg amputated, since died. Geo. A. Johnson, Hitchburg. James O'Connell, Indian Orchard.

Wounded—Wm. Elliott, baggage-master, shoulder out of joint and head badly bruised; E. O. Britton, road master, back and hip injured; E. S. Whitcomb, mail agent, back bruised and hurt severely; H. M. Sanderman, express man, arm broken in two places and head badly bruised. Wm. A. Foster, engineer, hip and knee bruised. Albert H. Blackwell, express messenger, shoulder and back badly bruised. Sidd. Howard, brakeman, skull fractured. Miss Lucy Bullock, of Royalston, cut over the eye and back of the head; not dangerous. Miss Jennie Bruce, badly bruised. Miss Jones Turner of Royalston, leg bruised and otherwise injured; dangerous. Mr. A. E. Doolittle, leg broken between the ankle and knee; Byron F. Bartlett, of Groton Junction, cut in the face; not dangerous. John Murphy, of Athol, cut in the leg and otherwise bruised. Hattie King, Ashburnham, badly face cut and bruised. Mrs. Chas. Dean, of Sunderland, Mass., face badly bruised. Mr. Young of Boston, chest and head hurt. Miss Ellis Bullock of Royalston, badly injured. Mr. Field of Taunton, leg injured.

All the surgeons in Fitchburg arrived at the scene soon after the accident and the surgeons and [illegible] Athol and Orange were promptly on the spot and rendered all the aid that was possible. Those injured and wounded, for Conductor Holden and all passengers not injured were prompt in rescuing the killed, and wounded from the wreck, carrying them in their arms out of the river to Conductor Bangs' train, which was on the spot as quickly as possible, and conveyed them to Athol.

The bridge, tank, tossing and cars were all in perfect order until the accident occurred to the engine, and the accident seems to happen through the mistake of the section-master, as stated by his watch.—Fitchburg Sentinel.

The Boston and Albany Railroad has been singularly exempt from accidents. For over 19 years not a passenger has been killed on the road, and only one injured, and he was injured by jumping from the train. Only two persons have been killed on the Fitchburg Railroad in 15 years, and no other road in New England has done so much for the safety of passengers as this.

WRITTEN IN COMMEMORATION of the Soldiers' Monument at Bucksport.

Through all the ages to come,
That shall follow after us,
We give our prayers, our love to our Race,
And unfolded, through years oft this wilderness,
The struggle for the Nation's life——

With undying patriot hearts, we laid,
Our own brave boys God rest 'em!
When "entering all life holds most dear,"
They marched to death without a fear,
Our country's call to heed!

God wrought his work—the strife was done—
And free, our land to soar!
Wiped home beneath our Stripe and Stars,
Our heroes marched with wounds and scars,
Alas! not all were sure

Of song, in sacred solemn charge,
The Southern dead still keep
The well-beloved lines—and none
Among the wild-flowers of the clime
Have come again to keep

Our grateful hearts their tribute bring
Our thankfulness to prove—
To those who saved this land, dear,
To raise our shaft, we join as one in a
With gratitude and love

Oh, God of battles, hear our prayer!
When life's warfare is o'er past,
And we are purged from earth and sin,
Grant us thy grace that we may win
Thy heavenly peace at last.

The little white satin shoe worn by the Duchess de Berry on the night her husband was assassinated, and stained with his blood, is preserved as a relic in a cabinet of the Faubourg St. Germain, where its reception day it receives the homage of legitimists.

A Piute, who in the streets of Virginia City Nevada, seized the hair of a Chinaman in a threatening manner, quickly began to run away and cried out. "Hi-yon, whoa, you stop-a wagon, do'im small." He was released, and breaking through the crowd, took him off to a safe distance, and then turned down himself up to his full height and with great dignity remarked, "Shoo Fly!"

A WEDDING OUTFIT.—The Baton Voice tells the following:

A few days ago a healthy looking Frenchman came into one of the stores in this county, appearing as though he had something which he was itching to tell, and very soon relieved himself by saying that he had just come from the house of the "most dad polish peoples." He said he was going to get married Sunday, and after telling how short he intended his "hot very bad lo-o-o-ng," said he wanted to buy "some thing" for the occasion.

His purchases were as follows: We give them for the benefit of any young people who may think they cannot afford to get married.

WEDDING DRESS.

9 yds print	$1.62
Lining and trimmings	.70 $1.81
HOUSEKEEPING OUTFIT.
1 coarse comb,	.10
1 fine comb,	.10
Maple sugar,	.25
Crackers,	.20
Tobacco,	.40 .65
Total,	$2.46

He took his purchases, remarking, "He bet her'll be glad when she see dat dress," and started off for the residence of his Dulcinea.

You see it don't cost much to get married, if one only thinks so.

BISHOP OF ST. JANUARIUS.—In the Church of San Gennaro (Saint Januarius), at Naples, are preserved, in a tabernacle behind the high altar, two phials, containing a solid, reddish substance, said to be the dried blood of St. Januarius, Bishop of Beneventa in the latter part of the third century, who suffered martyrdom under Diocletian. The tradition runs, that, when the saint was exposed to be devoured by lions in the amphitheatre at Pozzuoli the animals became tame, and prostrated themselves before him. This miracle converted so many to Christianity, that the Roman commander ordered him to be decapitated. After death, the body was removed to Naples. At the time of the removal, a woman, who collected the blood of the saint, delivered it into two bottles to St. Severus, in whose hand it immediately congealed. According to the belief of many Catholics, this miracle of liquefaction still takes place, at least three times every year, and the occurrence of it is the occasion of the greatest religious festivals observed by the Neapolitans. The head of the martyr, and the phials containing his blood, are carried in solemn procession to the high altar and, prayer having been offered, the head is brought into contact with the phials, the blood in which is thereupon believed to liquefy. The phenomenon, however, does not always take place immediately, and occasionally it fails altogether. The excitement of the congregation when the pretended miracle takes place is only surpassed by that caused by its non-occurrence, which is considered an omen of the worst possible import.—Oliver Optic's Magazine.

MIRAGE IN THE DESERT.—Leaving camp one morning, I saw, on turning, that a narrow strip of short, coarse grass had been suddenly transformed into a tall, magnificent hedge; and a single, massive stem of verde would as suddenly grow into a large, spreading tree. Out of the clouds, on the horizon, would come ships from sail to hull; a tall figure, in heavy dress, or a massive tower fall; and changing into one fantastic shape after another, the picture would slowly fade into vapor at last. Whole cities have risen before my eyes. I could have painted out which one of the different cupolas to be the City Hall, and which belong to my estimation, belonged to the First Presbyterian Church; and could have shown the exact locality of the harbor from the mouths of its many I seem near the roofs of the houses yonder.—Even Phil [illegible] deceived like Nathaniel. I asked him what he stopped the ambulance, and allowed the mules to rest at an unusual hour in the day. He pointed to a mountain I had not noticed before, which stood almost in front of us, and was steep and bare, of a light clay-color.

I then in the most strong [illegible] knows this road better than I do; but I'll be damned if ever I saw that mountain before."

He asked the men if they thought it could be maybe, but they shouted at me [illegible] was too substantial for that altogether. But what mountain—nothing else. Then where [illegible] all [illegible] instantly vanished. At the same time I noticed the mountain pushed, [illegible] two deep lines [illegible] apparently separated by a light bridge.—OVERLAND MONTHLY.
